

Ishani Mukherjee

Being a kid from the military background I was born raised and transferred all my life. I have been fortunate enough to have a wealth of experience with wilderness and gargantuan diversity of people. I have learned to absorb over the years from conversations, sounds, pages, the flowing brook and the burning cigarette in the corner of the experiences and struggles of varied people. My participation in extramural activities including debating, war of words in MUN, volunteering as a mentor has taught me human values of compassion, adaptability and to retain and bring in fresher ideas. Being a representative is a responsibility that I believe would give me a contingency to get to know all my peers and fellow students and effectively convey all their issues at the right ears. As an International Student, my experience has been wonderful with the University and I would appreciate the opportunity to give back positively to the Organisation in whatever little way possible.

Manifesto –

If I am offered the opportunity to be a current student representative, I would bring in the three-point objective of my agenda:

1. Developing better integrated mental health activities: QMU by itself strives to accommodate students and people from all kinds of the spectrum. The idea that people similar to you and your kind suffering the same issues have a space and more importantly an outlet to speak their minds will help increase participation of the union.
2. Increase society integration: A lot of events and societies have wonderful ideas on running various kinds of projects they are working on. By enhancing the communication between the union and different societies, especially newer ones would help integrate the societies with the Union, allowing greater participation and as a result more voices in the union.
3. Create creative events for causes of charity: The whole idea is that the more you get is when you equally give back. There is a plethora of noble causes that have motivated people to bring in innovative ideas, my agenda would be to help bring in more such events that help us stay stronger, motivated and compassionate as a Union. Social events or creative ones.
